

German Chancellor and Socialists Are Likely To Disagree On This Issue

Although Cabinet Holds Long and Harmonious Session at Which Outlines of Chancellor's Declaration to Reichstag Are Formulated, Socialist Members May Be Forced to Retire

BERLIN, Oct. 1. — Production, and still more production, abandonment of the eight-hour Irish and drastic curtailment of government, constitute some of the issues on which Chancellor Stresemann and the Socialists are likely to disagree on in the near future. The Bavarian situation has also furnished an unexpected supply of combustible, which threaten to prevent solidarity of Stresemann's socialist-bourgeois cabinet.

Although the cabinet held a long and alleged harmonious session today, in which the outlines of the chancellor's declaration to the Reichstag tomorrow were formulated, parliamentary correspondents believe that the cabinet will be forced to retire under the increasing pressure of the party's radical wing.

The points of divergence are wholly of internal origin as the cabinet is not expected to meet with the Reichstag tomorrow. The cabinet is expected to meet with the Reichstag tomorrow.

With the wrangling of passive resistance, Stresemann is said to be determined to win in the immediate future the program of drastic economic and social measures.

With such an eventuality would mark the beginning of a government which would be a government of emergency, by virtue of which it would receive the protection of a military dictatorship.

RAINS AND GALES DO DAMAGE IN THE MARITIMES

HALIFAX, N.S., Oct. 1. — Torrential rain and raging gales swept the Maritime provinces today and, while uprooting trees, washing out railroad beds and paralyzing lighting and telephone in many places, took its greatest toll in the Annapolis valley, where the season's apple crop was damaged to the extent of perhaps hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Train and ferry services were demoralized throughout the Maritime provinces.
